BASIC HEIKIN ASHI & 5 RULES FOR HEIKIN ASHI TRADE

by MYA 2022
10/3/2022

- ▶ Hollow or green candles with no lower "shadows" indicate a strong uptrend: Let your profits ride!
- ▶ Hollow or green candles signify an uptrend: You might want to add to your long position and exit short positions.
- ▶ Candles with a small body surrounded by upper and lower shadows indicate a trend change: Risk-loving traders might buy or sell here, while others will wait for confirmation before going long or short.
- ▶ Filled or red candles indicate a downtrend: You might want to add to your short position and exit long positions.
- ▶ Filled or red candles with no higher shadows identify a strong downtrend: Stay short until there's a change in trend.

5 Key Rules For Heikin Ashi Trade

There are broadly 5 rules that need to be followed when trading with Heiken Ashi Candles.

Rule Number 1 – Green candles with no lower “shadows” indicate a strong uptrend: When you spot these on charts, be in the trade and don’t think about profit booking. You might want to add to your long position and exit short positions.

Rule Number 2 – Candles with a small body with upper and lower shadows indicate trend change: These are indecision candles and require more confirmation.

Rule Number 3 – Red/Black candles with no upper shadow indicates strong a downtrend: When you spot these on charts, be in the trade and don’t think about profit booking. You might want to add to your short position and exit long positions

Rule Number 4 – Candles with long lower shadows represent Buying interest. Always take note of these candles and assess price action after you spot these candles.

Rule Number 5 – Candles with long upper shadows represent selling interest and be cautious with existing long positions if you spot such Candles.

10. BULLISH/BEARISH DIVERGENCE & HIDDEN DIVERGENCE

by MYA 2022
10/3/2022

- ▶ Bullish divergence occurs when prices fall to a new low while an oscillator fails to reach a new low. This situation demonstrates that bears are losing power, and that bulls are ready to control the market again—often a bullish divergence marks the end of a downtrend.
- ▶ Bearish divergences signify potential downtrends when prices rally to a new high while the oscillator refuses to reach a new peak. In this situation, bulls are losing their grip on the market, prices are rising only as a result of inertia, and the bears are ready to take control again.
